6.B. Briefly explain how in the late 19th century, the Indian nationalists tried to develop the ideas of nationalism through the revival of Indian folklore. (3)

The ideas of nationalism also developed through a movement to revive Indian folklore.

- In late-nineteenth-century India, nationalists began recording folk tales sung by bards and they toured villages to gather folk songs and legends.
- These tales, they believed, gave a true picture of traditional culture that had been corrupted and damaged by outside forces.
- It was essential to preserve this folk tradition in order to discover one’s national identity and restore a sense of pride in one’s past.
- In Bengal, Rabindranath Tagore himself began collecting ballads, nursery rhymes and myths, and led the movement for folk revival.
- In Madras, Natesa Sastri published a massive four-volume collection of Tamil folk tales, The Folklore of Southern India. He believed that folklore was national literature; it was ‘the most trustworthy manifestation of people’s real thoughts and characteristics’

26. Democracy's ability to generate its own support is itself an outcome that cannot be ignored.'—Support the statement with suitable arguments. (3)

- A democratic government is a legitimate government.
- It may be slow, less efficient, not always very responsive, or clean. But a democratic government is people's own government.
- That is why there is an overwhelming support for the idea of democracy all over the world. As the accompanying evidence from South Asia shows, the support exists in countries with democratic regimes as well as countries without democratic regimes. People wish to be ruled by representatives elected by them. They also believe that democracy is suitable for their country.

Democracy's ability to generate its own support is itself an outcome that cannot be ignored.

27 . A. What are the three components of a political party ? Do you think that modern democracies can function without political parties? ---Justify your answer with two relevant arguments. (3+2=5)

Ans:

1st part

- A political party has three components: the leaders, the active members and the followers.

2nd part

- We can understand the necessity of political parties by imagining a situation without parties. Every candidate in the elections will be independent. So no one will be able to make any promises to the people about any major policy changes.
- The government may be formed, but its utility will remain ever uncertain.
- Elected representatives will be accountable to their constituency for what they do in the locality. But no one will be responsible for how the country will be run.
- Large societies need representative democracy. As societies became large and complex, they also needed some agency to gather different views on various issues and to present these to the government.
- They needed some ways, to bring various representatives together so that a responsible government could be formed. They needed a mechanism to support or restrain the government, make policies, justify or oppose them.

Political parties fulfill these needs that every representative government has. We can say that parties are a necessary condition for a democracy

(Any 2 arguments)

OR

27. B. Define a political party. Give any three suggestions to reform political parties.

(2+3=5)

1st part

- A political party is a group of people who come together to contest elections and hold power in the government. They agree on some policies and programmes for the society with a view to promote the collective good. Since there can be different views on what is good for all, parties try to persuade people why their policies are better than others. They seek to implement these policies by winning popular support through elections.

2nd part

Many suggestions are often made to reform political parties:

- A law should be made to regulate the internal affairs of political parties. It should be made compulsory for political parties to maintain a register of its members, to follow its own constitution, to have an independent authority, to act as a judge in case of party disputes, to hold open elections to the highest posts.
- It should be made mandatory for political parties to give a minimum number of tickets, about one-third, to women candidates. Similarly, there should be a quota for women in the decision making bodies of the party.

- There should be state funding of elections. The government should give parties money to support their election expenses. This support could be given in kind: petrol, paper, telephone etc. Or it could be given in cash on the basis of the votes secured by the party in the last election.

28. Read the given text and answer the following questions : (1+1+2=4)

The Sri Lankan Tamils launched parties and struggles for the recognition of Tamil as an official language, for regional autonomy and equality of opportunity in securing education and jobs. But their demand for more autonomy to provinces populated by the Tamils was repeatedly denied. By 1980s, several political organisations were formed demanding an independent Tamil Eelam (state) in northern and eastern parts of Sri Lanka. The distrust between the two communities turned into widespread conflict. It soon turned into a civil war. As a result, thousands of people of both the communities have been killed. Many families were forced to leave the country as refugees and many more lost their livelihoods.

28.1 State any one majoritarian measure adopted in Sri Lanka to establish Sinhala supremacy.

- In 1956, an act was passed to recognise Sinhala as the official language, thus disregarding Tamil.
 - The government followed preferential policies that favoured Sinhala applicants for university positions and government jobs.
 - A new constitution stipulated that the state shall protect and foster Buddhism.
- (Any one measure)

28.2. What did the Sri Lankan Tamils demand in 1980s? (1)

By 1980s, several political organisations were formed demanding an independent Tamil Eelam (state) in northern and eastern parts of Sri Lanka.

28.3 Mention the consequences of the Civil War in Sri Lanka. (2)

As a result of the Civil War , thousands of people of both the communities have been killed. Many families were forced to leave the country as refugees and many more lost their livelihoods.
