6. Extract based question from prose (attempt any one) 5

i) (C) Personification

ii) She was fascinated by a bus. The journey was a source of unending joy for her. She was fascinated by the colour and look of the bus. The seats seemed very soft and luxurious. Valli clapped her hands in glee on watching a cow run right in front of the bus. On the other hand, she was overcome with sadness on her way back when she saw the same cow lying dead. The memory of the dead cow haunted her so much that she refused to look outside the window.

iii) to gobble up the things and persons

iv) true

OR

i) An inference about Griffin from the given context is that he is a private person who values his solitude, is possibly working on something that requires concentration and isolation, and has experienced some misfortune or incident that has disfigured his face, which he is sensitive about.

Or He has done something wrong that's why he is hiding away from people.

ii. This statement is False.

iii. It was relatively easy for Griffin to convince the landlord and his wife about his need for privacy due to his upfront payment and the explanation that he was an eccentric scientist affected by an accident, which seemed to provide a sufficient reason for his unusual behavior and appearance.

iv. A stranger of such uncommon appearance sparked everyone's curiosity.

7. Extract based question from poem (attempt any one) 5M

i. The contrast in the last two lines reflects the disparity between the purported bravery of Mustard, likened to a tiger in a rage, and the reality of Custard's fear, expressing a wish for the safety of a cage. Despite Mustard's aggressive comparison, it's Custard's honest expression of fear that stands out.

ii. He is revealing the imaginary characteristic of their personality.

iii. The poet's use of language is playful and uses hyperbole to humorously contrast the bravery of the characters with Custard's openly admitted fear. The vivid and exaggerated comparisons enhance the comedic tone of the poem.

iv) A. Bravery and heroism

B)

i. A. sheltered place

ii. C. to breathe freely

iii. Personification

iv. Empty forest means forest with no trees and the poet wants to convey that humans have destroyed the forests for building cities and other uses.

8. Answer any four of the questions. (4x3=12M)

Organisation-1

i) Mandela does not think that the oppressor is free because according to him an oppressor is a victim of hatred who is behind the bars of prejudice and narrowmindedness. He realizes that both the oppressor and the oppressed are robbed of their humanity and peace.

ii) Valli saw a young cow lying dead by the roadside, just where it had been struck by some fast-moving vehicle. It was the same cow that was running in front of their bus during their trip to the town. This made her sad.

iii) Amanda's visualization of life in a tower encapsulates her journey through various life stages, symbolizing challenges, growth, and the attainment of a broader perspective. This visualization helps her conceptualize her life's trajectory and the personal development required to reach her goals.

iv) Gautama Buddha began his life as a royal prince. He was named Siddhartha Gautama. At twelve, Gautama was sent away for schooling in the Hindu sacred scriptures. At the age of sixteen, he returned home to marry a princess. The prince was deliberately shielded from all sufferings of the world. But this attempt failed when the prince while out hunting chanced upon a sick man. Then, he saw an aged man. He also chanced to see a funeral procession. Finally, he saw a monk begging for alms. These sights of suffering, sickness and decay shocked and moved the prince. He wanted to seek the final solution of all these sorrows and sufferings. He wandered for seven years in search of enlightenment. Finally, he sat down under a fig tree. He meditated there until he was enlightened after seven days. He renamed the tree the Bodhi Tree or the Tree of Wisdom. He became known as the Buddha or the Awakened or the Enlightened one.

v) It describes how we humans will be the end of our own race. It also illustrates how desires, feelings of lust, and passion lead us to do ourselves harm, how hatred and unsympathetic judgement make us cold towards everyone.

9. Answer any two of the question. (2x3=6M)

i) Griffin misused his scientific discovery. Griffin cannot be called a true scientist because he has a criminal bent of mind. He sets a house on fire, loots a shopkeeper and steals cash from clergyman's desk. So he is more of a thief or a robber. He may be a brilliant scientist but not a good human being.

ii) Definitely, the young woman in red proved far smarter than Horace Danby. She played her part of being the lady of the house with complete perfection. She was an example of self-confidence. She didn't show any hesitation. She spoke and acted with an air of complete confidence and authority. Poor Horace became a puppet who couldn't take himself out of her spell. She threatened to call the police and made him open the safe, while Horace was later caught and arrested. She decamped with the jewels.

iii) During her education Bholi's teacher made her aware of her rights as well as duties. She faced the challenge of rejecting greedy Bishamber with determination and confidence. Thus she protected her self-respect and integrity.

i. Yes, it is true that fear and lack of confidence stop one from learning new things as in the story, the young seagull lacked courage and confidence in his character. He was too scared of flying. His family tried hard to make him fly but he refused to do so because of his fear of sinking in the seawater. They even scolded him for his cowardice. They tried to tempt him with food but he was not willing to learn flying. Once he dived, his fear disappeared and he enjoyed his first flight. It is a fact that unless we try for something and overcome our fear, we can't learn anything. Confidence and motivation are two most important traits that make any learning possible.

ii. Mijbil was an intelligent, friendly, and fun-loving animal. On the very first day of his arrival at the author's bedroom, Mij was aloof and indifferent and was neither friendly nor hostile. He chose to sleep on the floor as far from the author's bed as possible. This was all probably because he had suddenly been introduced into a new environment and was hence a little cautious. On the second day, the otter changed a lot. He felt at home in the author's bedroom. From the second day onwards, he started sleeping on the author's bed.

i. Richard Ebright had been a curious child even when he was in kindergarten. His curiosity prompted him to collect rocks, fossils, coins and butterflies. His mother's encouragement and his bright mind also contributed to making him a success. His mother got him all that he needed to develop his scientific bent of mind. His response to Dr. Urquhart gave him an opportunity in his endeavours. Then in 7th grade, he got a hint of what real science is when he entered a country science fair and lost. He realized that winners had tried to do real experiments. Further, he went on to win the highest honors and graduated from Harvard. His high school research into the pupa of the monarch on a monarch pupa eventually led him to his theory about cell life.

OR

ii. Mrs. Pumphrey was a wealthy lady with a fat pet dog named Tricki. Tricki was too dear to Mrs Pumphrey. Hence, she took extra care of him. She had pampered the dog with all kinds of comforts. The dog had many coats worn according to the weather, had different cushions for his comfort and also had various dishes to eat. Some extras between meals were given to him, some malt, cod- liver oil and a bowl of Horlicks at night to make him sleep. He was also given cream cakes and chocolates. This made him fat and lethargic. He became hugely fat like a bloated sausage. His eyes bloodshot and rheumy, stared straight ahead and his tongue lolled from his jaws. I think Mrs. Pumphrey's extra-caring nature resulted in Tricki's declined health. Such an attitude can result to be fatal for the health of their kins. One should not over care for them. Exercise and proper meal are important for one's health. The same was taken care by Dr Herriot, which resulted in the speedy recovery of Tricki.
