They saw it as a threat to their privileges.They felt that free print material could make the people rebel against the established religion. With this fear in mind, the Roman Catholic Church imposed several controls over publishers and booksellers. The Roman Church troubled by such effects of popular readings and questioning of faith imposed severe controls over publishers and booksellers and began to maintain an Index of Prohibited Books from 1558. | 3   |

|    | whose inhabitants were broadly known as the Slavs. A large part of the Balkans was under the control of the Ottoman Empire. The spread of the ideas of romantic nationalism in the Balkans together with the disintegration of the Ottoman Empire made this region very explosive. All through the nineteenth century the Ottoman Empire had sought to strengthen itself through modernisation and internal reforms but with very little success. One by one, its European subject nationalities broke away from its control and declared independence. The Balkan peoples based their claims for independence or political rights on nationality and used history to prove that they had once been independent but had subsequently been subjugated by foreign powers. Hence the rebellious nationalities in the Balkans thought of their struggles as attempts to win back their long-lost independence. This finally led to Ist World war.                                                                                                                                                                                    |       |

|    | Soil erosion is the natural process of wearing away the topsoil by physical sources such as wind and water. There are various measures which can be adopted to prevent soil erosion caused due to natural forces. 1. Ploughing along the contour lines can decelerate the flow of water down the slopes. This is called contour ploughing. 2. Steps can be cut out on the slopes making terraces. Terrace cultivation restricts erosion. Western and central Himalayas have well developed terrace farming. 3. Large fields can be divided into strips. Strips of grass are left to grow between the crops. This breaks up the force of the wind. This method is known as strip cropping. 4. Planting lines of trees to create shelter also works in a similar way. Rows of such trees are called shelter belts.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 1+4 |
| 32 | A political party is a group of people who come together to contest elections and hold power in the government. They agree on some policies and programmes for society to promote the collective good. They have specific functions: Contest Election: In most democracies, elections are fought mainly among the candidates put up by political parties. Parties select their candidates in different ways. In some countries, such as the USA, members and supporters of a party choose its candidates. Making Laws: Parties play a decisive role. Formally, laws are debated and passed in the legislature. But since most of the members belong to a party, they go by the direction of the party leadership, irrespective of their personal opinions. Role as Government and Opposition: Parties form and run governments. Parties recruit leaders, train them and then make them ministers to run the government in the way they want. Those parties that lose in the elections play the role of opposition to the parties in power and voice different views and criticize the government for its failures or wrong policies. Shape public opinion: They raise and highlight issues. Many of the pressure groups are extensions of political parties among different sections of society. Parties sometimes also launch movements for the resolution of problems faced by people | 1+4 |

|    | i. We can understand the necessity of political parties by imagining a situation without parties. Every candidate in the elections will be independent. So no one will be able to make any promises to the people about any major policy changes. ii. The government may be formed, but its utility will remain ever uncertain. iii. Elected representatives will be accountable to their constituency for what they do in the locality. But no one will be responsible for how the country will be run. iv. Political parties are directly linked to the emergence of representative democracies As societies became large and complex, they also needed some agency to gather different views on various issues and to present these to the government. v. They needed some ways, to bring various representatives together so that a responsible government could be formed. vi. They needed a mechanism to support or restrain the government, make policies, justify or oppose them.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 5   |
